Tissue Viability Society

The Tissue Viability Society works to disseminate information, promote research and increase awareness of all aspects of good clinical practice in wound prevention and management.

The Tissue Viability Society has over 1,500 members drawn from the various professions involved in tissue viability; primarily nurses but with many doctors, engineers, scientists, pharmacists, podiatrists and other professions also represented. There is a Council elected by members who serve to guide the strategic direction of the Society and a Business Office and Professional Adviser to conduct the day-to-day actions of the Society.
